Full exhaust assemblies added in the latest parts release focus on popular hatchbacks, light commercial vehicles and compact SUVs. The evergreen Ford Focus 1.6 is further supported in range, with vans such as the Renault Master, Peugeot Boxer and Fiat Ducato also featuring. The Hyundai Tucson, Kia's funky Sportage and Volkswagen's shapely Passat also gain increased exhaust range support.

New DPFs of note are aimed at the 2007 Land Rover Discovery, Audi's executive A5 3.0 TDI saloon and the latest models of the Ford Transit 2.2. CATs included in the list are centred on popular VAG applications from 2010 to 2012: the Audi A3, Seat Leon, Skoda Octavia and Yeti are included.

Due to its involvement in OES supply for leading manufacturers and its commitment to delivering aftermarket components that match OEM component performance, Klarius offers exceptional quality across its range, enabled by in-house facilities that seamlessly integrate research, testing, manufacturing, stock and logistics operations on one site.

Availability is another advantage. Dynamic stocking ensures equal access to both niche and popular parts, while additional services such as virtual warehousing can ensure distributors benefit from Klarius stock capacity without compromising their own on-site space. In-house logistics expert Autologistiks ensures next morning UK delivery, while in Europe, components can be sourced from distribution partners in France, Germany and Scandinavia.
